ABOUT ME

After studying design at fashion schools in Japan and London, I built my experience as a designer at a Japanese apparel brand. I then went independent, and today I work as a multi-designer focused mainly on web and graphic design. My strengths are a broad knowledge across design and the ability to handle a project end to end, from requirements definition through design, coding and delivery. In client work I listen carefully to each project's goals and challenges before proposing solutions, which has led to ongoing contracts with multiple clients. Rather than simply handing over deliverables, I translate each client's vision and appeal into design, aiming for visuals that people will love.
